Family convicted of human trafficking

MEMBERS of a Romanian family who trafficked a young child and a man into the UK to mistreat and abuse them at their Wood Green home were convicted at Croydon Crown Court last Thursday.

Husband and wife Aurel-Ilie Zlatea, 45, and Alexandra Oaie, 44, were responsible for trafficking a seven-year-old Romanian girl into the country where she was beaten and used as a domestic servant.

Together with their son Marian Neamu (aka Marian Zlatea), 25, the couple were also responsible for trafficking a 53-year-old man from Romania to their home in Wood Green.

There he was repeatedly assaulted, forced to work for nothing and made to live in a dilapidated shed at the end of the garden.

He was also denied access to a bathroom, fed very little and subjected to a brutal sexual attack at the hands of Neamu and Zlatea's younger son Florin Zlatea, 23.

He finally managed to escape and go to police. All four members of the family were charged in May last year.

Investigating officer Detective Constable Gemma Fraser said: "It is only because of the bravery and courage of the victim, by coming forward and speaking to the police, that we have been able to bring those who subjected him to such horrendous treatment to justice. And it is because of him that a seven-year-old child is now in a place of safety and faces a brighter future away from those who denied her of her childhood."

Detective Inspector Kevin Hyland, of the Met's Human Exploitation and Organised Crime unit, said: "This is a horrendous case of the abuse of a child coupled with the rape of a middle-aged, professional man."

"This shows the total disregard traffickers have to the human rights of those they abuse. In partnership with our European colleagues the MPS will always bring these matters to justice."

CAMPAIGN GROUP'S FURY AT LEADER'S STANCE ON SCHOOL

By Sumit Wadhia

PARENTS of pupils at Downhills Primary School are said to be outraged at Haringey Council's leader for not opposing strongly enough the decision by Education Secretary Michael Gove to turn the school into an academy.

In a letter to parents and guardians, Labour councillor Claire Kober said that Mr Gove "has insisted four [primary] schools [including Downhills] become academies".

This came in response to Downhills, in Philip Lane, Tottenham, being placed in special measures after an Ofsted inspection deemed the school to be "unsatisfactory".

A Save Downhills Primary School group, which includes a number of parents as well as parent governors of the school, issued a response to Ms Kober stating their frustration at such a "generalised, impersonal and, quite frankly, patronising letter".

They go on to say: "We are furious that neither the Department for Education nor the council are listening to what parents have to say and very angry that absolutely no attempt at conducting a meaningful consultation on the issue of academies has been undertaken by either body."

Following this, a small delegation from the group met Ms Kober on Friday to discuss what the council will do to ensure the best education for the children at the school. After the meeting, on social networking site Facebook in a group entitled Save Downhills School, Wendy Sugarman said: "At no point did she say our views mattered. Her key line was it's nothing to do with her - it's the Secretary of State doing this to you, not me."

Controversy: The future of Downhills School has been cause for much concern

Sarah Williams, in the same group, said: "Without a strong opposition, we have a dictatorship, not a democracy. Call me hopelessly optimistic but I thought we were in a privileged position of living in a democracy."

Ms Kober and David Lammy, the MP for Tottenham, were unavailable for comment at the time of going to press.

THREE people have been honoured for their work in helping to get the borough back on its feet following last August's riots.

Paul Cooper, the manager of Fastsigns in Enfield Town, Despina Johnson, from Enfield Enterprise, and Mark Rudling, the Enfield Town centre manager, have been invited to a reception organised by the Riots, Communities and Victims Panel at Admiralty House, in Whitehall, central

Trio recognised for their part in post-riots revival

London, tomorrow. Deputy Prime Minister Nick Clegg, Labour Party leader Ed Miliband and the panel's chairman Darra Singh are also scheduled to attend.

In the aftermath of the riots Mr Cooper produced a series of "We Love Enfield" stickers for businesses and retailers in the borough to put in their shop windows.

Christine Hamilton, Enfield Council's cabinet member for community wellbeing and public health and the chairwoman of the local panel that analysed the root causes of the riots, praised the work of the community.

"The response of the entire community to the riots which afflicted Enfield last year was phenomenal and showed the strength of community," she said.

"No sector of our society embodied the refusal to cower before the criminal element better than our businessmen and women and it is entirely appropriate that three of them are being honoured in this way."

Councillor defends business trip to conference in Cannes

By Ruth McKee

THE council has denied accusations that staff enjoyed a three-day "jolly" at a conference in the glamorous beach resort of Cannes in the south of France at taxpayers' expense earlier this month.

Henry Lamprecht, deputy leader of the Conservative group, has demanded to know how much the trip to the MIPIM international real estate conference cost the council, which has attacked the government repeatedly in recent months for slashing its budget by a third.

"I am dumbfounded and exasperated by this revelation that councillors and officers from Enfield splashed out on a 'jolly' like this in the current economic climate," said Mr Lamprecht.

A single ticket to the conference, which was billed as an opportunity for "19,000+ property leaders to view projects, assess profitable ventures, strike deals and seek out market information", cost £1,400, which Mr Lamprecht slammed as a "huge amount considering the average council tax bill per household is around the £1,400 mark".

But Del Goddard (pictured), cabinet member for regeneration, has hit back at the accusation that they frittered away council taxpayers' money on the event.

Mr Goddard, who attended the conference with a council officer, told the Advertiser that it was in fact business-to-business publishing company 3Fox-International, which publishes the council business magazine, Opportunity Enfield, that paid for the trip.

And he was adamant that the trip to promote the borough on an international stage was crucial for future investment in the area.

"It is necessary that Enfield raises its profile," he said. "You can't have major developments without encouraging people to invest."

The website for the company that funded the all-expenses-paid trip states that it "specialises in strategic marketing for regeneration programmes". A spokeswoman from the company admitted Enfield Council pays a "small fee" to 3Fox to publish the council magazine.

Mr Goddard added that the conference, which attracts investors, developers, architects and planners from the public and private sectors, is "one of the most efficient ways to have meetings", adding that Enfield was just one of a number of local authorities in London to send delegates to the event.

Healthy Ken tells Edmonton why he is the choice for London mayor

Making a point: Ken Livingstone arrived to red balloons and cheering campaigners

By Ruth McKee

THE image that will stay in my mind of Ken Livingstone on his whistle-stop campaign tour of Edmonton is the Labour mayoral candidate alone on the station platform, waiting for his train back to central London.

Few people recognise him, and the slightly stooped man in a raincoat reading the paper could be any other exhausted commuter on the way home after work.

His solo adventure on the train is a political statement in itself because the focus of Ken's current bid for City Hall is a promise to slash transport fares for Londoners by seven per cent, claiming his cuts would make residents in Enfield £250 better off a year.

"Because we've got the highest fares in the world there's a huge cash surplus at Transport for London – last year it was £700million and this year already, after nine months of the financial year, it is £350m," he told me, launching into practised campaign patter the minute my dictaphone appeared.

"So the fares cuts put £270m of that back in Londoners' pockets," he added as he walked through Edmonton Green, trying to get the message to the outer London boroughs that, under him, they will be richer.

Under a threateningly overcast sky Ken, flanked by local Labour councillors clutching red balloons and campaign stickers, patiently posed for pictures – even for the occasional opportunist passer-by demanding his picture because he was "off the telly" rather than the potentially the next Mayor of London.

But I imagine the battle-hardened campaigner has suffered worse setbacks in his political career – which, as well as two terms as mayor, stretches right back to the days of the Greater London Council in the 1980s – than not being recognised.

It could be this long experience on the campaign trail that means he is free to canvas and campaign without the protective barrier of minders and press officers that defines modern electioneering.

There is no anxious spin doctor controlling his answers and no burly bodyguard on hand to stop an Edmonton schoolgirl linking his arm and escorting him quite determinedly through the shopping arcade. Having met his gaffe-prone rival, incumbent Mayor Boris Johnson, it is hard to imagine the Conservative team giving their man quite the same freedom.

But when I ask if he has the energy for another stint as mayor – after all the 66-year-old could be forgiven for wanting to hang up his campaign slogans and retire to somewhere quiet with his newts rather than embark on yet another bitter and exhausting campaign – he is surprisingly frank about the state of his health.

"When I went for my annual medical the doctor almost had an orgasm," he explained. "I have the heart of a 40-year old, my kidney and liver function are great and my prostate is as smooth as a baby's bottom."

"Literally, I could live a thousand years."

As he makes slow progress through the growing crowd of amateur paparazzi that threaten to engulf him, he stops to speak to a woman who has little English, but speaks to councillor Yusuf Cicek in Turkish. I ask Ken, if this is something that concerns him, that there are vast swathes of Londoners his message just might not reach, and who might not vote even if he is able to convince them of his arguments.

"What the woman was saying is that she's reading about my policies in the Turkish media," he said, insisting that: "Yes, she will vote."

And Ken's refusal to be drawn on the issue of who votes, who can and why they would bother is a reminder that in both his last two terms as mayor his rhetoric always revolved around celebrating London's poly-ethnic make-up.

I ask him if he's worried that with the government's latest attempts to dismiss multiculturalism and, growing chasms emerging between communities, London is now more divided than ever.

But he seems indignant at the very suggestion, and responds like a protective parent.

"I think London is the most tolerant city in the world," he insists defensively. "Everywhere you go in London you see people who are mixed-race and there are mixed-race and mixed-faith relationships everywhere you go. People just take you for what you are."

"I think people define themselves as Londoners first before they define themselves as other things and that's why we got through the bombings in 2005 without any tensions between groups."

And with that off-the cuff, but for a politician alarmingly sincere-sounding, statement and one last photo op he walks up to the platform of Edmonton Green station to carry on the lonely journey back to the heart of London.

Developers' warning at Cat Hill plan rejection

By Daniel O'Brien

THE company behind a controversial 250-housing development on the border of Enfield and Barnet has reaffirmed its commitment to build homes on the site after councillors rejected the plans.

Enfield Council's planning committee agreed with its officers' recommendations that the application by developer L&Q for the ex-Middlesex University campus, in Cat Hill, be refused due to its impact on roads and wildlife.

Councillors also concluded that the five six-storey blocks and overall design of the development were out of keeping with the look of the area, adding these to their list of objections.

But a spokesman for L&Q said it was committed to using the site, which it owns, for a residential development despite the overwhelmingly negative reaction to the application from residents and politicians from the two neighbouring boroughs.

Hundreds of East Barnet and Cockfosters residents attended the special meeting at Ashmole Academy, in Cecil Road, Southgate, on Wednesday night to hear the decision on the development, which has been strongly opposed by members of the Campaign For Cat Hill.

Campaign leader Kim Coleman told the committee that the development would leave the area "irrevocably damaged". "Cockfosters does not need regeneration and if this application is granted it will be

Boarded up: The former university campus will not be turned into a housing development – to the delight of Kim Coleman (inset) altered, and not for the better," she said.

Enfield Southgate MP, David Burrowes, and transport secretary Theresa Villiers, MP for Chipping Barnet, also spoke out against the plan. Councillor Joanna Tambourides stated her objections on behalf of her East Barnet ward, where officers admit the impact on roads and school would be worst felt.

Simon Baxter, L&Q's project manager, warned the committee about the message it would be sending out if it refused the application.

"Those who might consider investing in Enfield are watching very closely indeed to see what happens when opportunity knocks on your door," he said.

But apart from the developers, there were few in support of the plan and the committee voted unanimously to reject it.

"I can't see how this community is going to withstand this and how what is being built here is going to enhance the community," said committee member Martin Prescott.

The decision is the latest development in a long-running fight against L&Q by members of the Campaign For Cat Hill. Since L&Q submitted its original bid in June, campaigners have held a series of protests, including a 67-hour vigil at the site in November.

Ms Coleman said she had been left exhausted by the campaign, but was prepared to continue the fight should L&Q appeal or come back with another proposal. "I feel that everything that myself and my committee has done has achieved great success," she said. "We have won the first battle."

L&Q's spokesman said it was now considering its next step. "We remain committed to bringing forward high quality family homes at Cat Hill," he added.

Doctor explains why he heckled health minister

By Ruth McKee

A DOCTOR who heckled Andrew Lansley on a visit to the Royal Free Hospital said he made the vocal protest because he believes the health minister's reforms would create "profit from people's pain".

Dr Ron Singer, who was a GP at the Forest Road Group Practice in Edmonton, challenged Mr Lansley inside the Hampstead hospital after the minister dodged a band of protesters outside the building.

The 63-year-old, who works with Keep Our NHS Public, was filmed by news cameras shouting: "I am a doctor of 30 years Mr Lansley, explain to me how this is going to make patients better because nobody understands your bill."

"It has got 1,000 amendments because it was so poorly drafted."

Mr Lansley was quickly ushered away.

Dr Singer told the Advertiser why he objects so strongly to Mr Lansley's Health And Social Care Bill, which will see NHS budgets placed in the control of groups of GPs – known as commissioning consortia – thereby paving the way for private companies to perform procedures on NHS patients.

He said: "The first clause in this bill ends the responsibility for the secretary of state to provide healthcare in England."

Dr Singer, who is president of the Medical Practitioners' Union, believes the reforms will create a two-tier health system, where a safety net to meet the most basic of procedures will remain but anyone who is desperate for anything beyond the most basic of medical attention will be forced to pay for procedures with private firms.

"Private healthcare can't wait to get their hands on taxpayers' money and private healthcare will cherry-pick its patients only taking the low risk ones," he said.

Dr Singer also issued a stark warning about what the NHS will look like once the bill becomes law.

"We know from looking at America that when profit comes before health, a lot of people get rich and a lot of people get sick," he said. "People are going to suffer in the name of profit."

Although there has been stiff opposition from medical professionals, the controversial bill is currently on its way to becoming law and is now at the report stage in the House Of Lords and will become law once it is given the royal assent.

But even though it may be impossible to derail the legislation, Dr Singer remains committed to opposing the passage of the bill, hitting out at the "undemocratic" nature of the way the proposals have been formulated. "It is safe to say there will be other protests," he added.

Ban on the way as rivers start to run dry

Banned: Anybody who waters their garden after the first week of April could face a fine of up to £1,000

By Mary McConnell

THAMES Water is to ban residents in Enfield from using hosepipes after a drought has officially been declared in parts of England.

From the Easter weekend – the first in April – anyone caught using a hosepipe to wash their car, water their garden or fill up a paddling pool could be fined up to £1,000.

The ban is to be introduced because Enfield and parts of south and east England have suffered from two abnormally dry winters in a row.

According to Thames Water, which supplies homes in Enfield, groundwater levels and many of the smaller rivers feeding the Thames have fallen to their lowest levels since records began.

Enfield residents receive 20 per cent of their water from groundwater, while the rest comes from the Thames.

Water from the William Girling and King George's reservoirs on the eastern side of the borough, which are still 98 per cent full, are used as north-east London's reserve supply.

A Thames Water spokeswoman told the Advertiser: "By introducing water restrictions now, we hope to avoid taking too much water from the reservoirs over the spring and summer. We don't know how long the ban will last. We are relying on rainfall."

She added that at least 20 per cent more rain than average was needed in the next few weeks to reduce the risk of drought.

Douglas Coker, from Enfield Green Party, said the hosepipe ban could carry on for months as global warming continues to have an effect on weather patterns.

"It is always said that you cannot attribute any particular weather event to global warming but things are changing," he said.

"This really is pretty serious and we could start finding ourselves having empty supermarket shelves as farmers find it harder than ever to produce food with low levels of water.

"There are a lot of obvious things that people can do, like having shorter showers and using butts to collect rainwater for their gardens.

"We need to stop doing daft things like using drinking water to flush our toilets," added Mr Coker.

"There could be a huge programme of public works to save on water – which might be a way of creating new jobs for people."

Voluntary groups in mix for £1.9m funding share

By Ruth McKee

COUNCIL bosses have created a new fund totalling nearly £2million, which will be given out in grants to voluntary groups across the borough, in a bid to stamp out "inequality and deprivation".

This is the first year of the new £1.9m Community Capacity Building Fund, which Enfield Council reports claim will support "projects that are likely to improve the social and/or economic wellbeing of the borough".

Councillors are due to meet tomorrow night to decide which of the 83 applicants will get a share of the largesse.

The applications include a bid for £73,608 from Edmonton Eagles Amateur Boxing Club for "youth diversion, sports and mentoring sessions" along with a request for £9,900 from the Edmonton-based Kongolesse Children's Association to teach car maintenance to young people.

Achilleas Georgiou, the deputy leader of the council, who is a member of the fund's sub-committee, told the Advertiser: "We have got some great community groups who are helping us deliver services."

"We recognise that a number of these groups need extra capacity so that they can build themselves up."

"The community groups are valuable because they help us deliver what we would otherwise have to deliver ourselves," he added.

Boxing clever: Edmonton Eagles ABC has applied for £73,600

"It's a valuable service. We want to help them to deliver more."

Mr Georgiou denied that finding the money for the fund had put an additional strain on an already tightly-stretched council budget.

"Our budget has been cut back by a third over four years by central government," he admitted.

"But for all the talk from the government about the Big Society – voluntary groups are feeling the pinch and we are committed to helping these groups deliver services to the community."

The ENFIELD ADVERTISER COMMENT

A worrying trend

TRENT Country Park has long been a treasure of the borough, residents have benefited for years with having a piece of the countryside right on their doorstep.

This week the Advertiser has learnt that Enfield Council looks set to sell off parts of the park, bit by bit, as well as support further developments.

Originally Go Ape looked like an isolated plan for a section of the land. Now, in the context of plans for ten floodlit pitches on the golf club grounds, and between the new secondary school proposals, a mooted tribute to the legend of Camelot and with the already existing hockey club, equestrian centre and hotel, it is easy to see how conservationists are worried the park will become over-developed and no longer remain the tranquil spot it once was.

The announcement that part of the land is being sold adds more worries. If part of the land is given up now, how likely is it the council will hold on to the land in the future?

The war is not over

AFTER a well-run and hard-fought campaign, members of a group against the proposed Cat Hill housing development have landed a major blow against applicant L&Q.

However, neither developer nor those opposed to the plans believe this is the end of the fight. If its appeal is not upheld, L&Q will return with new plans – plans that could be smaller, less intrusive, more visually appealing – and may even not try to suggest that a six-storey tower block is similar in appearance to a chimney.

But being a housing association, it is unlikely L&Q's latest proposals will be for a new sanctuary, or even a school with a new-centred ethos.

As much as Enfield's planning committee might appreciate the concerns of residents it will not be able to resist forever the company's attempts to build on the land it owns.

Campaigners can enjoy their win for now, but the end result may feel more like a draw.

Doctors express their health bill concerns

WE LONDON doctors would like to express some of our many concerns regarding Andrew Lansley's Health and Social Care Bill.

We are concerned that increasing use of private providers in the NHS will result in health inequalities and a two-tier system.

We know that better educated patients who own cars are much more likely to access alternative providers. Multiple providers make joined-up healthcare and service improvement much harder.

We believe that the drastic shake-up would be harmful, that the NHS can be improved within existing structures and that the responsibilities of the Secretary of State for the NHS should not be altered.

One of [David] Cameron's arguments in favour of the Bill was that it would cut bureaucracy but in fact the number of NHS organisations will, on the contrary, increase from 163 to 521, including the new "national commissioning boards" and "clinical senates".

Nearly £1billion has already been spent making NHS staff redundant with many being reemployed in the new bureaucracies.

It is not too late to withdraw the bill. The best thing about the NHS is that it provides equal access to the same level of healthcare whether rich or poor. We must put pressure on Enfield North MP Nick de Bois to vote against this damaging bill.

AS LONDON doctors, we condemn Enfield North MP Nick de Bois for voting against the publication of the national register detailing potential risks associated with implementing Andrew Lansley's Health and Social Care Bill.

Parliamentarians urgently need this information to inform their scrutiny of the bill. We know that regional risk registers have highlighted major problems with the bill. For example, NHS London's risk register stated "the quality of the commissioning of healthcare may be poor, both in securing the best health outcomes for London's population and in maximising value for money" and warned there may be "preventable harm to children".

The British Medical Association last week called the bill "incoherent". The tragedy is that all this disruption is entirely unnecessary. Two of Lansley's new clinical commissioning groups in London came out against the bill last week.

Mr de Bois and his coalition government face a choice in the weeks ahead. They should listen to the vast majority of healthcare professionals, withdraw the bill and work with us to achieve greater clinical involvement in NHS planning – something we would support.

Remember, Chase Farm is not closing

FURTHER to your article "New doubts over Chase Farm deadline" (Advertiser, February 29) we would like to make it clear to readers that Chase Farm Hospital is not closing.

More than 200,000 patients will still be seen and treated at Chase Farm Hospital – that's the current majority of patients the hospital treats now.

The trust will be investing millions of pounds in the first phase to improve the Chase Farm site, with further investment planned for the future so we can provide new urgent care services, rehabilitation beds and facilities for the assessment and treatment of older people and children.

We will continue to provide the existing range of tests, outpatient appointments and a full complement of therapy services – all in much-improved surroundings.

GPs and clinicians have a leading role in deciding the timing of the service changes and will ensure that the implementation delivers high quality, safe care for the local population.

We are confident that the new facilities will deliver health care in a much safer and higher quality environment.

Dr Douglas Russell, Medical Director for Primary Care, NHS North Central London, Ian Mitchell, Medical Director, Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust

Disappointed by jobs fair critics

I WAS disappointed to read the letter from M. D. Cox attacking the Enfield Jobs Fair – "Did jobs fair really offer anything new?" (Advertiser, February 29).

At a time when unemployment is rising, an event to help to tackle it is surely a good thing. Indeed, when I think of young people being out of work, I was pleased to see the Enfield Jobs Fair had many firms offering apprenticeships.

I also read that there were hundreds of jobs on offer and this didn't include the ones from Jobcentre Plus.

M. D. Cox has therefore been rather unfair in criticising the event. As it cost the taxpayer nothing and yet it gave people here an opportunity to try and find work, I'm struggling to see why M. D. Cox would see fit to go on the attack.

Of all the things MPs get criticised for, I wouldn't have thought that organising a Jobs Fair would be one of them.

I, for one, think Nick de Bois deserves a lot of credit for organising the event and I'm sure most people would agree with me, especially if they or one of their family or friends got a job because of it.

Getting people a fairer deal

WITH the price of all fuels constantly going up, your readers may be interested in an organisation that is inviting people to sign up for a fairer deal from gas and electricity suppliers.

38 Degrees has so far collected more than 200,000 signatures of people who want to join in their challenge of the power of big gas and electricity companies.

The Big Switch will happen from the strength of people demanding a better price deal and the greater number of those signing up, the more power 38 Degrees will have when negotiating on our behalf.

For many, the saying of "heating or eating" is already recognised as a reality. May I urge readers to check out the site and see its possibilities for themselves on secure.38degrees.org.uk.

If there is a way for customers to fight back, this could be it.

Borough set to be festooned with Olympic bunting for five months

By Ruth McKee

THE opening ceremony of the 2012 Olympic Games is still months away – but the borough will be ramping up the promotion of the summer of sport from May with tens of thousands of pounds worth of banners and flags lining the borough.

The temporary advertising is planned for a five-month period until September when bunting and flags, bearing the Olympic logo, will be erected in Enfield, Southgate and Edmonton town centres as well as around the Queen Elizabeth Stadium, in Donkey Lane, Enfield.

The council claims that the banners and flags will draw hordes of shoppers to the borough and will make the town centres “attractive destinations” throughout the Games, during which the capital’s population is expected to swell by six million with an estimated 450,000 tourists and 5.5million day visitors.

The £50,000 promotional push comes from the London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games and the Greater London Authority, who have stumped up the cash for the barrage of advertising.

Doug Taylor, the leader of Enfield Council, has promised that the decorations, which include 2m x 1m flags and 25m x 90cm fence decoration, will go hand in hand with “a bumper year of sporting activities to inspire young people to take up a more active lifestyle”.

He said: “It is important to us that our communities have a chance to feel part of London 2012 and this scheme will help bring the look and the feel of the Games to Enfield and help our residents feel part of the fantastic event which is coming to the capital later this year.”

The nearest Olympic venue to the borough is the Lee Valley White Water Centre, in Station Road, Waltham Cross, where the canoe and kayak events will be held.

But there is still anger among Londoners that such a small portion of tickets were allocated to city dwellers whose taxes are helping fund the multi-billion-pound event and who fear they will bear brunt of the transport disruption the Games are expected to cause.

The opening ceremony takes place on July 27 and the Games finish on August 12. The Paralympics run from August 29 to September 9.

Betting shop suspects: CCTV footage from one of the raids

Cycle hire duo in £46,000 swindle

TWO men have admitted scamming thousands of pounds from the "Boris Bike" scheme.

Nana Boateng, 26, of Kingsway, Ponders End, and Jose Dias, 26, from Lower Clapton, east London, made dozens of refund payments from the London cycle hire scheme to their friends.

The two are thought to have swindled a total of £46,000 from the bike scheme while working for Serco, the company that runs the Barclays cycle hire programme.

Both admitted conspiracy to defraud by making false representations last Thursday and are due to be sentenced at Southwark Crown Court on May 11.

Bookmakers hit in spate of robberies

By Robin de Peyer

POLICE are searching for two men suspected of carrying out a series of robberies in betting shops across north London.

The two are believed to be responsible for robberies in a total of seven different bookmakers.

CCTV footage of the duo has been released and police are now urging people to come forward with any information which may help them in their inquiries.

Detective Inspector Rhys Willis said: "The duo posed as genuine customers before distracting members of staff to steal cash from them."

"We are appealing to anyone who may be able to help identify the two suspects. All calls will be treated with the utmost confidence."

The suspects are thought to be in their mid-20s, about 5ft 10ins tall and of medium build, and are described as Turkish, Albanian or Kurdish in appearance. A robbery at Ladbrokes, in Church Hill Road, East Barnet, on Monday put an elderly assistant in hospital with wrist and arm injuries after she resisted the robbers' attempts to seize the shop's cash box.

The seven raids took place over a period of two months, with the robbers getting away with cash on each occasion.

The first six robberies took place in William Hill shops – starting on January 7 in High Road, Whetstone, and continuing on February 8 in Green Lanes, Winchmore Hill, on February 11 in Cockfosters Road, on February 14 in Lordship Lane, Tottenham, on February 23 in Ballards Lane, Finchley, and on March 5 in Philip Lane, Tottenham.

To contact police, call Crime-stoppers on 0800 555 111.

□ A 25-year-old man has been charged in connection with the investigation into the robberies.

Boundary change critics mount up

By Mary McConnell

THERE is cross-party opposition to the plans to merge parts of Edmonton with Chingford to make a new constituency before the next general election.

In statements made to the Boundary Commission, which is aiming to reduce the number of MPs by 50 before 2015, both Enfield Council and Waltham Forest Council agree that Lee Valley and the King George's Reservoir are natural boundaries that divide the two areas, as well as highlighting the lack of community cohesion and difference in demographics.

The submissions to the Boundary Commission, made last year as part of the public consultation into the proposed changes, were published last week.

If put into effect, the proposals would see Edmonton Green, Jubilee and Lower Edmonton, currently in the constituency of Edmonton, become part of the new Chingford and Edmonton constituency.

The rest of the constituency would be made up of five wards from Chingford and Woodford Green, currently represented by Work and Pensions Secretary Iain Duncan Smith and one ward, Higham Hill, from Walthamstow. Edmonton's remaining wards would be absorbed by surrounding constituencies.

Mr Duncan Smith told the commission: "The overall nature of the new constituency is simply untenable on practical grounds as well as historic and even social grounds so I would hope that these will be reviewed at the time and changed."

Edmonton MP Andy Love, who has been cam-

Opposed: Andy Love campaigning against the plans in Edmonton paing against the proposals since they were announced last year, said: "It is clear from the published responses to the Boundary Commission's proposals that there is widespread, cross-party consensus that joining Edmonton with Chingford to create a new constituency makes next to no sense."

"As a great number of us have highlighted, there are a multitude of reasons why the seat would be untenable, not least the impenetrable divide of the Lee Valley."

Members of the public are allowed to have their say on the responses given in the initial consultation. Go to consultation.boundarycommissionforengland.independent.gov.uk for more information.

Restored to its former glory: Louise Ashon (right) at work in St Mary Magdalene Church, where the faded inscription to Queen Victoria (above) has re-emerged

Renovation work at church reveals jubilee inscriptions

By Mary McConnell

THE paintings on the ceiling of St Mary Magdalene Church were dedicated to Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee in 1897, restoration work has just revealed.

The chancel ceiling, which is being restored at a cost of £100,000, bears an inscription reading: "This ceiling was decorated in 1897 on the completion of the 60th year of the reign of Queen Victoria at the cost of Mrs Philip Twells."

Over the years the inscription, which is above the main stained-glass window at the front of the church, has become completely obscured by dirt and soot.

It was only the restoration work, being carried out in the year of the present Queen's diamond jubilee, which last week revealed the link to Queen Victoria.

The church, in Windmill Hill, Enfield, was built in 1883 at the request of Georgiana Twells in memory of her husband Philip, an Enfield resident and MP for the city of London, who had died three years earlier.

The vicar, Reverend Gordon Giles, said: "It is a fantastic discovery. It had always occurred to us that our restoration would coincide nicely with the diamond jubilee of Queen Elizabeth but to find this makes it extra special."

"We have written to the Queen to let her know, but there hasn't been a response yet."

The restoration work on the ceiling and walls of the church began in January and is due to finish in April. The Heritage Lottery Fund stumped up half of the money for the restoration, which is being carried out by Hirsts Of Spalding.

"We are expecting it to look quite gaudy, we were rather hoping for that," added Mr Giles.

"Because the ceiling is 100 feet up we would rather like the bright colours so people can see."

Paul D'Armada, senior conservator with Hirsts, said: "One of the main things was all the white paint was lead-based, which had gone really dull grey. The white lead paint is much more susceptible to darkening. It just fades to a brown-grey colour and we really can't get it white again."

Sadly, it will be very difficult to see the inscription once the scaffolding comes down because it is at the edge of the ceiling.

New look for office reflects the long and the short of it

By Sumit Wadhia

THE quirky redesign of a Southgate-based insurance company has sparked the interest of Britain's leading interior design organisation.

Brothers Andy and Solomon Tzouvanni decided to ditch the traditional look of Insurance by LittleNLarge.com to celebrate the firm's 10th anniversary by having each element catered to the difference in height of the two owners.

The new-look headquarters, in Chase Side, comes complete with different sized doors, desks and lamps for each brother as well as a putting green and bowler hat lights.

"I hate sitting still and think much better when I'm moving around," said Solomon, 32, who stands six feet tall. "The putting green is perfect to help me work in the most productive way to get the best for our clients."

The office even has a little and large cola on offer for customers to help complete the makeover. "We love it and, most importantly, our clients love it," said Andy, 29, who at 5ft 3ins is nine inches shorter than his older brother. "In this trading climate we've discovered first hand how interior design is essential to creating the impact we needed to build our brand."

The office has quickly created a buzz, according to designer Evros Agathou, of Avocado Sweets Interior Design Studio.

"This is a fun office that will stand out from the crowd here in the high street," he said. "LittleNLarge has shown that when trading times are tough, investing in design that unlocks your business' potential is essential."

Vanessa Brady, president of the Society of British Interior Designers, said the insurance brokers' new office promoted good British design focusing on creativity that aids a company's business goals.

"Avocado has showcased this approach effectively in its LittleNLarge design while creating one of the quirkiest offices around," she added.

Solomon admits that Insurance by LittleNLarge.com is not as big as the likes of Google but says that the office is a clear example of how thinking creatively can get the best out of a business in whatever industry. Andy added: "Everyone leaves the office smiling."

Looking up: Andy Tzouvanni, designer Evros Agathou and Solomon Tzouvanni

School set to stick with timetable for pupils' homework

By Sumit Wadhia

A SELECTIVE school says it has no plans to change its homework timetable after the government's education supremo scrapped national guidelines.

In a move to lift the burden of bureaucracy on headteachers Michael Gove, Secretary of State for Education, has dispensed with recommendations made by Labour in 1998 to give pupils between 30 minutes to two and a half hours of homework every day, depending on the school year.

Mr Gove wants a school's homework policy to be freely decided by those running schools.

Non-statutory guidelines, although not obligatory, were issued with the aim of forming the basis of a school's homework timetable.

Mr Gove believes that by scrapping them, the government will be relieving schools of unnecessary bureaucracy and granting heads more freedom in determining the needs of their pupils.

Mark Garbett, headteacher at the selective Latymer School, in Haselbury Road, Edmonton, said: "Non-statutory guidelines are treated as such by Latymer and always have been. We have a homework timetable, which is adhered to by staff and students, according to government guidelines.

"We have no plans to change this. Homework is valuable when it is thoughtfully constructed and a useful addition to what is covered in class.

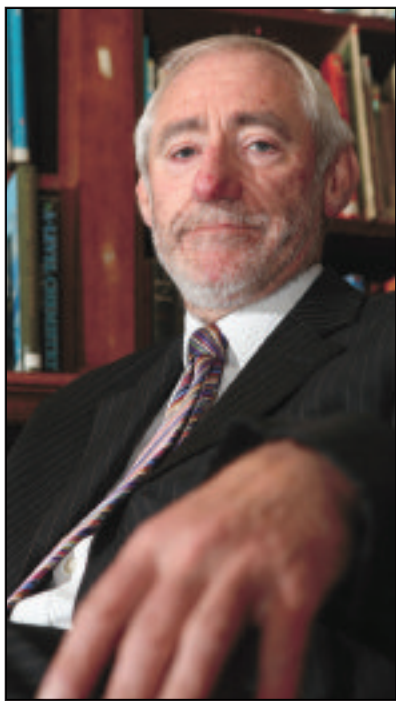

"Students need to learn at school how to learn. Guided self-study is an important aspect of the curriculum," added Mr Garbett.

Susan Tranter, Edmonton County School's headteacher, agrees that homework is pertinent to a child's education as it allows them to practise what they have been taught in class and help them prepare for exams.

"This will aid them in achieving the results they need to secure their future," said the head of the school in Great Cambridge Road.

Ms Tranter highlighted the extra responsibility the government's new policy placed on the shoulders of headteachers.

"With freedom comes responsibility," she added. "Headteachers may now have increased freedom but they also have greater responsibility. This is something that the vast majority of headteachers will welcome."

No plans to change: Latymer School headteacher Mark Garbett

Youngsters ready for India rickshaws trek

By Sumit Wadhia

A GROUP of nine young thrill seekers from north London is set to travel 1,800km across India in rickshaws in a bid to raise money for charity.

The nine – calling themselves The Rickshawalas – will embark on the long journey from Gujarat, through the deserts of Rajasthan, up The Himalayas, through to Manali in eastern India. They are Nirav Shah, 24, from Southgate, Janvi Shah, 18, from Southgate, Dilisha Patel, 24, from Enfield, Kushan Shah, 22, from North Finchley, Bhavik Haria, 19, from Stanmore, Kavi Shah, 24, from North Finchley, Nishil Shah, 19, from Edgware, Raveena Nagaria, 19, from New Southgate, and Aarti Shah, 22, from Palmers Green.

The group aims to raise £30,000 for CAREducation Trust UK, a charity which provides educational and vocational training to more than 6,000 underprivileged children in various parts of the world. Money raised will go to The Himalayan Buddhist Cultural School in Manali and the group will also donate the rickshaws they use for the journey to the school.

When asked why they chose rickshaws as the primary mode of transport, team leader Nirav said: "When you think of transport in India, the thing you think of first is the rickshaw so we wanted to travel in something typically Indian to make the experience more authentic."

The group is excited at the prospect of travelling along roads they have little or no experience on. "It will be the most challenging part for us but it's all part of the journey," he added.

In an attempt to raise the staggering amount, the interpid youngsters have done a number of things, from small scale busking in Tube stations, to hosting a musical concert at the Watermans Theatre, in Brentford, in February. The evening was all about supporting young talent, The Rickshawalas project and raising awareness for CAREducation Trust UK.

Bharat Solanki, a representative of the charity, said: "We have

Ready to go: The nine youngsters with one of the rickshaws they will be touring round India in been supporting schools for more than 12 years, but we have never known such creativity and courage that these young members are showing. They are an inspiration to us and our future. They will change the lives of the people they touch indefinitely."

The group sets off on Sunday for the planned 12 to 14-day expedition. To find out more information on the project, visit www.rickshawalas.com

Doug Taylor

Leader of Enfield Council

Our survey shows that majority of residents are satisfied with services

WE have always been clear that we want to build a borough where people feel safe, secure and happy and, according to the recent Enfield's Residents' Survey, that is what we're doing.

The findings of this year's survey show that the vast majority of residents like living in Enfield and, pleasingly, most also say that the council does a good job.

But we're not complacent. We still need to find millions of pounds of savings because of unprecedented government spending cuts in the next few years.

Our challenge is to continue to deliver quality services that our residents rely on, while continuing to listen to and respond to what they say their priorities are.

In 2011, 83 per cent of residents were satisfied with Enfield as a place to live and three quarters were proud of their borough.

We've known for a long time that residents rate good quality environmental services such as street cleansing, recycling, refuse collection and transport as their top priorities – and we've reflected that in our spending priorities in previous years to ensure we offer superb services to residents.

That approach appears to be working with more than six in ten people satisfied with the parks (84 per cent), refuse collection (82 per cent) and street cleansing (65 per cent) services.

We have also found that listening to residents, for example during the library services consultation, and then acting on their feedback, means residents feel more informed and pleased with the service offered – in this case eight of ten people are satisfied with the service.

Overall more than 60 per cent of residents think the council is doing a good job and two-thirds say we're good at telling residents what we're doing and why.

Howard Medwell

Leftside

WHY are so many people protesting against the government's workfair scheme? To the Tories the answer is obvious: there are reds under the bed!

The Prime Minister, the Sun, the Daily Mail, even London's comical mayor are all agreed – it's the loony lefties of the Socialist Workers' Party who are stirring it up.

The SWP must think it's Christmas. Never in the field of Trot-bashing has so much publicity been given by so many to so few.

Do the Tories really believe you have to be a Trotskyite to disapprove of super-rich companies using unemployed youngsters as freebies?

The companies themselves aren't fooled. They signed up for the scheme hoping that it would make them look like touchy-feely philanthropists. They soon started dropping out as it dawned on them that this line wouldn't sell.

Youth unemployment has replaced immigration as the elephant in the room, the subject we don't want to talk about.

We can just about cope with the information that a million 16 to 25-year olds are now unemployed, and that most of them are cut adrift from education or training, as well as work.

We'd rather not be told that next year's unemployment statistics are likely to be worse, or that they will result in more crime

Seeing red at opposition to work scheme for youngsters and anti-social behaviour, more non-political rioting and more despair, drugs, alcohol and suicide.

Employers should be forced to give young people real jobs, with decent pay, training and career development.

The trouble is, we live in a country where businessmen are popular heroes. We gawp in admiration at the corporate bullies who swagger across our TV screens in programmes such as Dragons' Den and The Apprentice.

Take away their sacred right to hire and fire? Most of us would be scandalised at the idea!

10,000 sign up for recycling network

By Mary McConnell

THE Enfield Freecycle group, which allows residents to pass unwanted goods on to others in a bid to keep landfill levels down, has topped the 10,000-member mark.

According to the group the milestone was reached on Friday. The group's website allows people to post information about goods they want to donate and they can also request specific goods they require.

Enfield's lead moderator Mark Griffin said: "We get all sorts of things up on our website – from plastic ice cube trays, to cars and everything in between.

"It's a good little community and it is based on goodwill. I detest throwing things away. Last year I gave away a tumble dryer that I was told had been broken. The guy I gave it to managed to get it fixed up.

"One person's junk is another man's treasure. We are changing the world one gift at a time. Our aim is to keep things out of landfill and there are very few things that cannot be donated."

Together with the help of the North London Waste Authority and local authorities, Freecycle events have been staged across north London, including one in Jubilee Park, Edmonton, last year, allowing people to donate goods they no longer need and pick up things they want for free.

The Freecycle Network was launched by Deron Beal in Arizona in 2003 and has now spread to 85 countries. It is estimated to keep 500 tons a day out of landfill worldwide.

Go to http://groups.freecycle.org/enfield_freecycle to sign up.

Full house at poets' corner

Busy bee: Poet Carol Ann Duffy

POET Laureate Carol Ann Duffy was in Enfield on Monday night to give a reading from her new collection, Bees. Ms Duffy was at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, where a packed house enjoyed the poetry.

She was joined by members of the Salisbury House Poets, who organised the event and who also read out some of their own poems.

Anthony Fisher, the co-founder of Salisbury House Poets, based in Edmonton, was extremely pleased with how the evening went.

"It was fabulous," he said. "She gave a good reading and her co-performer John Sampson was excellent. The whole thing was very well received."

Among those who attended the event were Edmonton MP Andy Love and former mayor of Enfield Jayne Buckland, as well as pupils from Enfield County School.

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

Charity begins at home as residents top £21,000 mark

ROB BOURNE

By Sumit Wadhia

A RESIDENTIAL home has raised more than £21,000 for charity in the last few years.

Springview Care Home started raising the money in 2008 when its residents' committee approached the home's management.

Significant donations have been made to Chase Farm Hospital's children's ward and eye clinic, North London Hospice, the Dystonia Society and the London Air Ambulance – and Prostate Action was presented with a cheque for £8,000 last month.

The home, in Crescent Road, Enfield, opened in 1987 and houses 58 residents, who have an average age of 87.

The committee, led by Kathy Dunn, has organised a number of events, including quiz afternoons, jazz concerts and bridge walks.

The most recent one saw staff and residents' families walk across every bridge over the River Thames between Westminster Bridge and London Bridge.

Jeremy Balcombe, managing director of the home, hailed the contribution everyone has made.

"It is great to see the incredible energy expended on other people's behalf," he said.

"It upturns some of the stereotypes associated with care homes. The residents here want to make an active contribution to helping the community and it makes them feel worthwhile."

Vicki Jater, a committee member, who helped organise many of the charitable events, talked about how stalls were set up around the care home, selling cakes to jewellery.

"Jeremy once paid £5 for a cake," she joked. Mr Balcombe added: "It seems every time I visit the home I have to get my wallet out! It is a great example to us all that, whatever the circumstances, you should always try to help those people not as fortunate as yourself."

The members of the committee, which includes both residents and family members, plan to carry on raising money for different charities.

Another committee member Malcolm Rapier added: "We have plenty of events lined up for the coming months, such as a casino afternoon for residents and relatives, another sponsored walk, a summer fete and definitely something based around the diamond jubilee."

Unlock your Potential with Goffs School Sixth Form

Mus Moroglu joined Goffs School in 2004. He wasn't thinking about his future and wasn't sure whether University would be the right route for him. Throughout his time at Goffs School, he has been pushed to achieve the very best and is now studying Pharmaceutical Chemistry at Queen Mary's University, London and looking forward to a successful career in the future.

"I'm the first person to go to University in the family. During my time at Goffs, teachers in-spired me and encouraged me to make the most of my education. I never dreamed that I would be going to University, let alone getting a bursary to go due to my results last summer 3A's at a Level".

Goffs School prides itself on its personalised curriculum and high aspirations for all. The Sixth Form centre offers a range of pathways suited to its learners allowing them to succeed at a wide range of qualifications.

Alongside the academic qualifications, Goffs invests time in extra curricular provision in the Sixth Form. This allows students to develop a range of skills to help them achieve at University and in the workplace. A newly launched scheme in September 2012, will see the provision of a Leadership Pathway dedicated to students wishing to go to Russell Group Universities. The programme offers students the chance to take part in mock interviews, to lead meetings and discussions and to attend application workshops, very specific to Russell Group Universities.

Ms Garner, Headteacher at Goffs School is immensely proud of the achievements within the Sixth Form:

"As a school we are growing everyday and our Sixth Form community plays a key part in its development. We are proud of our Sixth Form students and want each of them to do well, whether that is securing a job or going on to Higher Education. Our exam results at A2 last year were the best ever and we anticipate doing even better".

If you want to be part of the Goffs School Sixth Form, then go along to their External applicants Open Evening on Wednesday 28th March. For more information contact Maxine Padgham on mpd@gofts.herts.sch.uk or call 01992 424200 ext 221

The laughs keep coming for HA8 Comedy nights

By Mary McConnell

ONE of north London's best comedy nights is going from strength to strength since it was founded last November.

The past three shows staged by HA8 Comedy, at the Edgware Constitutional Club, in Manor Park Crescent, Edgware, have all sold out and tickets for Saturday's show are set to continue in the trend.

HA8 Comedy's founder Michael Kossew said Saturday's line-up was packed with top comedians from the club circuit.

Headlining will be Kockov, a "leather-trousered, mullet-haired Monkrovia master mind-reader and magician."

Kockov, whose real name is Jasper Blakeley, will provide "magic, improvisation and comedy", according to Michael.

"He closes shows at some of the biggest comedy clubs in the country," he said. "He is one of the biggest names on the circuit and comes highly recommended.

The line-up also includes New Zealander Andre King, who has been working as a comic in his homeland for ten years and moved to the UK 18 months ago to try his luck here.

"We recommend you buy tickets beforehand, or come early on the night because they will sell out," Michael added. "People are really talking about Edgware on the circuit, about how good it is a room.

"I am hoping that by next season, starting in September, it will be firmly establishes as a venue. I think, other than in Camden, there aren't any comparable venues."

Doors open at 7pm on March 17. For more information or to book, go to www.ha8comedy.co.uk

Show: Kockov will be bringing his mullet and magic to Edgware

The Westender

with Mary McConnell

THE effect of the 1980s' miners' strikes on the men involved has been discussed at length in films and plays over the years.

However, The Awkward Squad, a brilliant new play by Karin Young, makes a case for it having a positive effect on the lives of working-class women.

No longer holed up in menial jobs, many women were brought together by the strikes, politicised and given a chance to use their voices.

It tells the story of Lorna, a former wife of a striking miner, her two daughters Pam and Sandy and her granddaughter Sarah.

Set 25 years after the miners' strikes, The Awkward Squad examines the lives of women then and now. Warm and witty, the play achieves it aims without ever being preachy – and four fine performances bring out the best in Young's script.

Emmerdale actress Charlie Hardwick gets the best laughs of the evening. With spot-on comic timing she gives a wonderfully desperate turn as Sandy, whose prize possession in life is a Rolls-Royce.

With the West End dominated by men and plays about men, it is refreshing to see a play about four, at times flawed, but always interesting women and the issues that affect their lives.

Show gets a seal of approval

AS part of its Curtains Up series, which aims to introduce young children to the theatre, a new puppet show by the Jactito Theatre Company is coming to Lauderdale House on Saturday.

Sonia The Baby Seal, which is ideal for two to seven-year-olds, tells the story of a seal swept away from her home in the Arctic by a big storm. On her journey home, Sonia meets Snowy The Snowman, Penelope The Dancing Penguin and Peter The Polar Bear.

The Curtains Up series, which is running until June and then again from September, sees a different show, featuring puppets, clowns, music and even magic, being staged at Lauderdale House, in Highgate Hill, Highgate, each Saturday.

Lauderdale House's general manager Katherine Ives said: "The informal nature of the gallery makes it ideal for providing a first taste of theatre. The children sit on carpets at the front so are right up there with the action and there are no scary blackouts."

"An added bonus is that we are in the beautiful Waterlow Park so on a sunny day there are places to run around, ducks to see on the pond, playgrounds to climb in and everyone can get refreshments from our café."

The Jactito Theatre group has been visiting Lauderdale House since the venue started its children's shows more than 20 years ago.

Founded in 1976, Jactito originally produced puppet theatre for adults but after rave reviews it moved into the children's arena.

"Sonia The Baby Seal is a creative and fun 45-minute show, which also educates children about the environment and the vastness of the ocean," added Katherine.

"The show includes a musical underwater scene, featuring exotic, multi-coloured fish and many different creatures of the deep."

Tickets are available on www.lauderdalehouse.org.uk. The show is on March 17 at 10am and 11.30am.

New mum Geeta makes a family-friendly Coffee Bar

Restaurant News

By Denise Roland

A NEW mum has balanced motherhood with mocha and childcare with cheesecake to open a new coffee shop in Winchmore Hill.

Geeta Yadav, who became a mum in July, has spent her maternity leave launching the cafe with her husband, Rajesh Bance, 39, and sister, Dimple Yadav, 28.

The Coffee Bar, which opened on February 10, is bright and airy with white walls, two twinkling chandeliers and mulberry purple chairs.

Her vision is for the cafe to be family-friendly, saying: "We've created a lot of open space in the cafe for buggies so it's a good place for mums and babies to come."

"But we cater for all ages. In our first three weeks we've had customers aged from seven to 87!"

All of the coffee is Fairtrade, and there is a delectable choice of cakes and muffins to complement the aromatic brew.

There are smoothies, juices and flavoured frappes for kids to enjoy, and lunchtime fare is also on offer with a range of paninis, sandwiches, toasties and baked potatoes. Delivery is available for local businesses.

Geeta said: "Everything we sell is fresh. Our coffee beans are fair-trade and organic, and we grind them here in the cafe."

The 32-year-old will return to work as a dispensing optician later this month while her sister takes on the day-to-day running of the coffee shop. But she and her husband will still work in the cafe on Saturdays.

On Mother's Day the cafe is putting on an afternoon tea spread for groups who book in advance.

The Coffee Bar is also available for private hire on Sundays and evenings.

What will you be doing whilst we take care of your property?

Our landlords get to spend their time doing other things whilst we sort out the gas safety certificate, EPC, electrical certificate, referencing, deposit, rent guarantee and of course finding the right tenant.

They also enjoy peace of mind by using a registered ARLA agent and benefit from Client Money Protection which insures against misappropriate use of rent or deposits.

Just some of the reasons why they rely on us.

BMW dips its toe into the UK hybrid market

By Matt Joy

SPARE a thought for those who aren't and probably never will be a fan of diesel. It's hardly the most delightful of substances to handle, and service stations without disposable gloves on hand ought to be closed down. Trouble is diesel engines have seen huge advances over the last decade and with manufacturers pouring millions into developing cleaner, faster and more refined powerplants, they make an awful lot of sense.

BMW has been at the forefront of this trend, too. Only a few weeks ago it announced a fiendishly clever triple-turbo high performance diesel. But it has an arguably unequalled reputation for superb petrol engines, and now it's trying to combine this know-how with some electric boost.

The Active Hybrid 5 is the firm's first hybrid offering to reach the UK and just looking at the vital statistics it has an awful lot to offer. Behind the familiar 5-Series nose there is the 3.0-litre twin-turbocharged 302bhp petrol unit already used elsewhere in the BMW range and in particular the 535i – the car that BMW says the Hybrid 5 is an alternative to.

In the Hybrid 5 however there is 52bhp electric motor added to the mix and with both motors pulling at the same time there is 335bhp and 332lb.ft of torque, all channelled to the rear wheels only through an eight-speed automatic gearbox. No question then that it is still a sporting saloon – 0-62mph takes only 5.9 seconds and it is fast enough that the 155mph electronic limiter is required. Yet the eco numbers are remarkably good too.

The combined fuel consumption of 44.1mpg is just a whisker behind a manual 535 diesel, as is the 149g/km CO₂ emissions figure.

Yet from the driver's seat there's almost nothing to tell you you're in a petrol hybrid. The comprehensive standard specification includes the highest grade satellite navigation, four-zone climate and the high-gloss wood trim too. So far, so typically excellent 5-Series.

But when you fire it up there's complete silence, and if you tread gently on the accelerator it pulls away entirely under battery power. From starting the Hybrid 5 can manage 2.4 miles before it has to switch on to petrol power, but with the charge flowing in and out you find yourself switching into pure electric mode far more often than the mileage would suggest. It also runs up to 37mph in electric mode, but better still is the way in which the engine shuts off completely on the overrun.

The real gem is that the Hybrid 5 makes a financial case for itself too. At £46,860 it gets pretty close to its in-house rivals, but what the Hybrid 5 does that nothing else can is match petrol power with performance, economy and low emissions. That you can get all this in a car which is excellent to start with is the best news of all.

FACTS AT A GLANCE

- BMW Active Hybrid 5, £46,860
- Engine: 3.0-litre petrol with electric motor producing 335bhp and 332lb.ft of torque
- Transmission: Eight speed automatic driving the rear wheels
- Performance: Top speed 155mph, 0-62mph 5.9 seconds
- Economy: 44.1mpg combined
- Emissions: 149g/km of CO₂

The Gazette Advertiser & Press Group

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.
2. 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.
3. To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', '(T)' etc. in the advertisement.
4. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:
 - (a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;
 - (b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or
 - (c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.
5. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.
6. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.
7. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.
8. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowances.
9. All gross advertising rates (except classified lineages and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.
10. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.
11. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.
12. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.
13. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.
14. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.
 - (1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.
 - (2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should Legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.
15. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect for an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.
16. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.
17. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.
18. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.
19. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.
20. Box Numbers
Boxes are open for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. Original testimonials, goods, cash, cash stamps or payments of any kind must not be enclosed. A box Number and postal address are charged as part of the advertisement, i.e. Box No., centre address. There is no charge for forwarding replies.
Box numbers alone are not available for use in 'Trade' advertisements, other than Employment and Business Opportunities.
21. Holiday & Travel Category
All advertising must contain the name of the advertiser, phone number alone are not permitted.
22. Data Protection
The service you have requested may require us to carry out a credit search at a credit-referencing agency, which will record the fact that a search has been made. We may need to share your information with other lenders and credit reference agencies. However, we will only use the information from these searches to make credit-granting decisions and, if necessary, for fraud prevention or tracing debtors.
Data controller will use your information for administration and analysis. We may share your information with other Tindle Group Newspaper companies or carefully selected third parties. We, or they, may send you details of other goods and services, which may be of interest to you. The information may be provided by letter, telephone or other reasonable means of communication. Calls may be recorded or monitored for training purposes.
Special conditions apply with regard to the advertising of adult services, which are outlined to all persons submitting such advertisements.

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.

2. 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.

To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', '(T)' etc. in the advertisement.

3. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:

(a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;

(b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or

(c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.

4. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.

5. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.

6. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.

7. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowances.

8. All gross advertising rates (except classified lineage and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.

9. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.

10. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.

11. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.

12. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.

13. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.

(1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.

(2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should Legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.

14. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect for an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.

15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.

16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.

17. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.

18. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.

Disappointing start to league campaign

THE London Skolars were unable to carry their encouraging cup form into the league as they suffered a 36-4 defeat at Rochdale Hornets in their first Co-Operative Championship One match of the season on Saturday.

The Skolars went into the clash on a high following their impressive performance against Halifax the previous week, but they got off to a poor start as tries from Gary Middlehurst and Wayne English helped the hosts to open up a 10-0 lead inside 16 minutes.

The visitors hit back and got on the scoreboard midway through the half with a well-worked move which ended with Joe Price touching down after space had been created out wide.

However, that try proved to be only the points that the Skolars scored, and Rochdale extended their advantage prior to the interval through a Paul O'Connor try.

Any chance that the Skolars had of coming back into the match was effectively ended when James Anthony was dismissed on 56 minutes for a high tackle on Rochdale skipper Phil Wood.

Middlehurst scored his second try of the match moments later, and the hosts took full advantage of their extra man to cut loose in the final ten minutes – with Steve McDermott, Stephen Bannister and Middlehurst all touching down to seal a crushing win.

The London Skolars host the North Wales Crusaders on Sunday (3pm).

Keeping the faith: Harry Redknapp still believes that Spurs will come third this season

Last-gasp loss ends fine unbeaten run

HARINGEY BOROUGH'S nine-match unbeaten run came to an end on Saturday as they suffered a last-gasp 2-1 defeat at Stotfold in the Spartan Premier Division.

Despite being below their best, it looked as if Borough would escape with a point until – in the fifth minute of injury time – Lewis Holmes struck from close range to snatch the victory for Stotfold.

Borough started brightly and Christopher Benjamin had a goal ruled out for offside before they did take the lead on 21 minutes when Dean Fenton drove home after good work from Roland Namquita.

Although Andreas Loizou was forced to make a goalline clearance, the visitors continued to look the more threatening side and Loizou's shot was turned on to the bar by Stotfold keeper Brad Gillham.

But Borough appeared to ease off as the second half progressed and they were made to pay as Mark Bryant levelled the scores with a shot which took a wicked deflection on 69 minutes, before Holmes' late intervention ensured that they ended up empty-handed.

Meanwhile, Haringey Borough have won the Premier Division team of the month award for February after winning all three of their league games which beat the weather during the month – scoring 14 times and conceding just twice in the process.

Haringey Borough host Hillingdon Borough on Saturday (3pm).

NO NEED TO PANIC

By Dominique Stafford

HARRY REDKNAPP is refusing to press the panic button despite watching his Tottenham Hotspur team suffer a third successive Premier League defeat at Everton on Saturday.

A first-half goal from Nikica Jelavic was enough to give the Toffees victory at Goodison Park to continue Spurs' recent poor run, which has also seen them lose to Arsenal and Manchester United.

And, although Tottenham remain third in the table, they are now just a solitary point ahead of their bitter north London rivals and four clear of fifth-placed Chelsea – who they visit later this month.

"We have to keep going," Redknapp said. "We've lost away to Arsenal, away to Everton and at home to Manchester

United, and they're always going to be tough games.

"I said all along that ten points can evaporate very quickly, but we're still in a better position than the other teams and we've just got to keep going, keep believing and we'll go again and turn it around.

"Arsenal beat us fair and square, but we didn't deserve to lose the other two games.

"It's difficult trying to finish above teams like Manchester City, United have been there and done it every year and Arsenal are in the Champions League every year. It's a tall order, but I still think we will finish third."

Spurs were ultimately forced to pay the price for a poor first-half display on Saturday which saw them fail to test Everton keeper Tim Howard.

The visitors were much-improved in the second period and could easily have picked up at least a point for their efforts, but the goal would not come – with Louis Saha coming closest to snatching an equaliser when he hit the post in stoppage time.

"I thought we were very unfortunate," Redknapp added. "We've won games we should not have this year, and you lose some that you shouldn't lose.

"That's the way it goes, but you can't just look at the result – you have to look at the whole picture.

"I couldn't have asked for more in the second half, to dominate them the way we did. We just needed a break in front of goal.

"We missed a chance at the end that 99 times out of a 100 we would have scored. It was just one of those things."
